

Friendship from Above

Stu Weber takes time in this chapter not to talk about dogs, but about his relationship with his Creator. It is a gospel presentation that is best left to what he has written. The only comment I'd like to make is that his presentation of the concept of grace and forgiveness is beautifully done.

I don't think I could look myself in the mirror if I didn't know that I am loved and cared for no matter what I do or don't do. My relationship with my Creator, as with my wife, is based on unconditional love, not some kind of performance criteria. That's the kind of support, understanding, and love, that we demonstrate on a daily basis toward those we are walking through life with. If we don't have unconditional love for others, then nothing we do will have lasting benefit, and we will not experience the fullness of God's blessings.

Personally, I want His blessings to overfill my cup - 1 Cor. 13, Ps. 23.
